

Code of Business Conduct Sotherly Hotels Inc.

Introduction

This Code of Business Conduct (the “Code”) applies to Sotherly Hotels Inc. (“Sotherly” or the “Company”), its subsidiaries and affiliates.

Sotherly expects each officer, director and employee to use sound judgment to help it maintain appropriate compliance procedures and to carry out its business in compliance with laws and high ethical standards. Each Company employee is expected to read the Code and demonstrate personal commitment to the standards set forth herein.

Sotherly’s officers and other supervising employees are expected to be leaders in demonstrating a personal commitment to the standards outlined in the Code and in recognizing any indications of illegal or improper conduct.

All Company employees are expected to report appropriately any indications of illegal or improper conduct.

Any Company employee who does not comply with the standards set forth in the Code may be subject to discipline in light of the nature of the violation, including termination of employment.

The Code is not a contract and is not intended as a detailed guide for all situations one may face. Sotherly employees are also expected to comply with its employee handbook and other workplace rules Sotherly may from time to time communicate, all of which supplement the Code.

Sotherly’s Commitment to its Shareholders

The Company expects its employees to share a commitment to protect its assets and manage its business in the best interests of Sotherly’s shareholders.

- Accuracy of our records and reporting: All financial and other business information pertaining to the Company must be accurately recorded, all financial records and transactions must adhere to Sotherly’s system of internal controls and accounting requirements, and no one shall enter any false or artificial information in Sotherly’s records or reporting systems. All Company information must be reported honestly and accurately, whether in internal personnel, safety or other records or in information Sotherly releases to the public or files with government or regulatory agencies.
- Disclosure Controls and Procedures. Sotherly is required by Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) rules and regulations to maintain effective “disclosure controls and procedures” so that financial and non-financial information the Company is required to report to the SEC is timely and accurately reported, both to Sotherly’s senior management and in the Company’s SEC filings. All Sotherly employees are expected, within the scope of their respective employment duties, to support the effectiveness of Sotherly’s disclosure controls and procedures. To that end, it is Sotherly’s policy to promote the full, fair, accurate, timely and understandable disclosure in reports and documents that the Company files or furnishes with the SEC and otherwise communicate to the public. Please see the Company’s Disclosure Controls and Procedures policy for more information in this regard.

- Financial Code of Ethics for Employees with Financial Reporting Obligations. Because Sotherly's Chief Executive Officer, Chief Financial Officer and other members of its finance department have a special role in promoting the fair and timely reporting of Company financial results and condition, these individuals are also bound by the following Financial Code of Ethics.  - not utilize any confidential information acquired in the course of one's work for personal advantage;
 - share knowledge and maintain skills important and relevant to the goals of the Code;
 - proactively promote ethical behavior among peers, in the work environment and in the community;

 - be accountable for adherence to the Financial Code of Ethics outlined in the Code.
- Prohibition on Improper Influence on Conduct of Audits. It is against the Code and Sotherly's other policies, and it is a violation of SEC rules, for any of Sotherly's officers or directors, or any person acting under their direction, to coerce, manipulate, mislead or fraudulently influence the independent auditors selected to audit or review Company financial statements when the officer, director or other person knew or should have known that the action, if successful, could result in rendering Company financial statements materially misleading.

- Stock Trading and Confidential Information Policy. The Company’s Insider Trading Policy prohibits any Company employee who is aware of material nonpublic information concerning the Company, or concerning third parties with whom the Company does business, from buying or selling Sotherly securities or of those third parties (until after any such material information has been fully disclosed to the public). Company employees must not disclose or “tip” any of this material nonpublic information to family, friends or others outside the Company. As detailed in the Company’s Insider Trading Policy, the trading restriction on Sotherly securities would not apply to sales or purchases in accordance with a “trading plan” validly adopted in compliance with applicable SEC Rule 10b5-1.
 - No Selective Disclosure. In addition, SEC rules generally also prohibit selective disclosure of material nonpublic information to those outside the Company. Therefore, all employees are expected to assist the Company in keeping all material nonpublic information about Sotherly strictly confidential unless and until the Company makes an authorized press release or other authorized public communication or filing. Please see the Company’s Disclosure Controls and Procedures policy for more information in this regard
 - Information to the Public. The Code and Sotherly’s other policies provide for timely public dissemination of material information relating to Company business only through its employees authorized for this purpose. Company employees are not under any circumstance to discuss the Company’s financial, business or other information with the media or press (except for those Company employees expressly authorized for this purpose) or on any Internet or other “discussion board,” “chat room” or similar forum. Requests from the media, analysts or shareholders about Sotherly must be forwarded to an authorized officer or the Company employee in charge of Sotherly’s investor relations function for review by personnel having responsibility for these matters. Please see the Company’s Regulation FD Corporate Communications Policy for more information in this regard.

All Company employees should help Sotherly to protect its assets from misuse, theft, damage or other loss. Improper or unauthorized personal use of Company assets is prohibited.
- Intellectual Property. Company employees should help Sotherly maintain the value of its intellectual property by using care to keep its trade secrets and other nonpublic information confidential, and limit access to nonpublic information to those authorized to use it in their duties for the Company. If customers or suppliers provide nonpublic information to Sotherly in their dealings with the Company, Company employees are expected to treat that information in the same manner as they would treat Sotherly’s intellectual property.
- Communications. Company employees are expected to use appropriate judgment and discretion in their email, memos, notes and other formal and informal communications relating to Sotherly’s business. Company policy also prohibits making false or deceptive statements about its competitors and giving or accepting kickbacks, bribes, inappropriate gifts and other matters prohibited under the conflict of interest topic in the Code.
- Protecting Information about Others. Sotherly is committed to treating confidential information of our customers and business partners with at least the care we use to protect its own proprietary or confidential information. - Business with Third Parties. Sotherly expects that its consultants, agents, subcontractors and other business partners will adhere to lawful and ethical business practices. It is important to the Company's reputation for it to avoid doing business with companies which violate applicable laws or have reputations which could harm Sotherly's business. Company procedures prohibit engaging agents or other third parties to conduct indirectly what Sotherly should not conduct under the Code and Sotherly's other policies.

Sotherly's Commitment to Each Other

Sotherly expects each Company employee to promote a positive working environment for all.

- Respect for Company Employees. Sotherly’s employment decisions will be based on reasons related to its business, such as job performance, individual skills and talents and other business-related factors. It is Company policy to promote the ethical handling of actual or apparent conflicts of interest between personal and professional relationships.

- Generally. Although some general guidelines are provided in the Code, Company employees are expected to apply sound judgment to avoid conflicts of interest that could negatively affect Sotherly or its business, whether or not it has specific rules for that particular situation. Company employees are expected to disclose to Sotherly any situations that may involve inappropriate or improper conflicts of interests affecting them personally or affecting other Company employees or those with whom Sotherly conducts business, as described below under “How to Report Your Concerns.”

- Personal Investments. Generally, Company employees must avoid investments in other companies with which Sotherly does business if these investments could create the fact or appearance of a conflict of interest, except as permitted in their respective employment agreement, if any. Investing in relatively small positions of publicly traded securities of other companies is generally not prohibited so long as there is no violation of the Company's Insider Trading Policy, specifically relating to trading while in possession of material nonpublic information about other companies.
- Corporate Opportunities. Company employees must also refrain from purchasing property or otherwise taking for themselves personally a business opportunity that they learn about through their employment with Sotherly or use of Company information.

These restrictions do not apply to Sotherly non-employee directors who disclose their relationships to the Company.
- Gifts and Gratuities. Company employees must not seek or accept gifts or gratuities in the form of services or other items of value from Sotherly customers, other business partners or other parties with whom the Company contracts. Company employees must not offer or give anything of value to any individual or entity that could be or appear to be a bribe or otherwise illegal payment. These prohibitions do not apply to items of truly nominal value such as generally free promotional items, assuming these items are not otherwise prohibited by applicable law or custom. Company employees should never accept anything that would appear to create a conflict of interest. In the unusual situation where refusal to accept a true gift might hurt Sotherly's business, please consult with an appropriate Sotherly officer of concerning the proper means of resolving the situation.
- Business Entertainment. Extending or accepting invitations to reasonable meals, public events and similar business activities incurred for bona fide business purposes are generally acceptable, assuming the costs are not disproportionate to the business purpose and otherwise do not create the fact or appearance of a conflict of interest. Company employees are expected to avoid sponsoring or accepting invitations to highly expensive events funded with corporate funds or personal celebrations such as birthday parties with costs paid with corporate funds at which the business purpose may appear incidental. Attending entertainment events that may appear contrary to professional standards of conduct should be avoided. Government officials should not be invited to entertainment events without first assuring that appropriate Company management approves the invitation and confirms that it is not prohibited by law.

- Travel. Employees are expected to comply with the Company's travel policies in effect from time to time. Sotherly expects that all travel-related expenses must be used, accurately reported and recorded in compliance with any such policies. Sotherly expects its employees to be committed to pro-active compliance with all applicable laws and regulations affecting the Company and its business. In addition to the laws referred to elsewhere in the Code:

- General Standard of Compliance. Company employees must comply with all applicable listing and governmental rules and regulations in every location in which Sotherly conducts its business. - Prohibited Corrupt Practices. Sotherly and its employees must comply with the United States Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and other anti-corruption laws that apply wherever it conducts business. Company employees and agents must not directly or indirectly offer or make a corrupt payment to any domestic or foreign government official, political party or candidate, or employee of any enterprise owned or controlled by a government agency, for the purpose of influencing any official act or inaction, or obtaining, retaining or directing business. - Environmental Laws. Sotherly respects the policies and requirements of domestic laws aimed at protecting the environment and expects compliance with any such laws or regulations. Sotherly expects a commitment from its employees to report appropriately any violations of environmental laws and any exposure to hazardous materials or substances which are not being handled or disposed of properly.
- Intellectual Property Laws. Sotherly expects Company employees to conduct its business and use its business systems and facilities in ways that avoid any violations of copyright, trademark, service mark, patent, trade secret or other intellectual property rights held by third parties.

- Money Laundering Prevention. People engaged in certain criminal activities such as illegal drugs and fraud may try to disguise proceeds of their crimes as legitimate funds. Many countries, including the United States, have enacted laws against money laundering that prohibit businesses from accepting or processing proceeds of criminal activities. Some of these laws require the reporting of defined cash or other suspicious transactions. Company employees responsible for documenting customer transactions should use due care to “know your customer,” follow proper procedures for documenting the source and manner of payment and otherwise help Sotherly to avoid transactions that may involve illegal money laundering.

Our Communities

Sotherly respects its employees’ involvement in community, charity, religious and political activities and causes. Sotherly encourages such involvement so long as any such activities do not interfere with Company job responsibilities. No Company employee may represent that the employee’s views or activities represent those of Sotherly. Company employees must not engage in any unwanted solicitations or pressure toward other Company employees relating to any such community, charitable, religious or political causes.
